Heswall Police Station

It would appear that the future of Heswall Police Station has been decided, but it is still a mystery to most of us.

The Merseyside Police Crime and Commissioner's Office who own the building placed it on the market last year and invited sealed bids for the property. Those unsuccessful applicants were informed earlier this year, but it has not been publicly revealed who was successful.

When Heswall Magazine contacted the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner for Merseyside for an update they stated: "We have accepted an offer for the property in line with our expectations, and the process is now with agents and solicitors to process in the normal property sale manner."

Local speculation suggests the building will be turned into apartments, retaining the facade, but we have been unable to confirm this and rumours will continue to circulate.

The Heswall Society entered an unsuccessful application to have the building listed and their only option left was to contact the the Police and Crime Commissioner and stress the local importance of maintaining the exterior of this building, one of the few distinctive buildings in Heswall, designed by the respected architect, Harry Beswick.
